

COUNTY FAIR ASSN. TO PUT STOCK ON SALE

Active Drive Planned to Strengthen Association.

The Board of Directors of the Lee County Fair Association has launched a campaign to sell stock in the organization to Lee County residents and will offer an unlimited number of shares at $10 per share in hopes that there will be a liberal subscription from all over this county.

The Fair Association deserves the support of the residents of all parts of the county and it is hoped that the support will be forthcoming so that the Lee County Fair may continue to expand and progress. There are a number of places where additional capital can be expended with profit to the fair.

The Lee County Fair, which is held in Amboy and has valuable grounds and buildings there, has been highly successful due to the untiring efforts of the group of men who have been active in its management, and all of the profits of the association have been put right back into the fair and equipment, so that the shares already out have increased in value correspondingly.

City to Require that Coal and Ash be Wet

The practice of hauling ashes that have not been wet down out of basements in the downtown section, as well as the time worn method of unloading coal in places of business without it having been thoroughly wet down is to be stopped, the city council decided last evening. It was decided to have an ordinance drafted which would put a stop to both these evils, which was said, have been the cause of much complaint.

The ordinance will apply only to the business district of the city. Commissioner J. E. Vaile invited the members of the council to make a trip to Rockford in the near future to inspect the operation of a street sweeper which it is proposed, will be in use in Dixon this summer.

The council voted to allow the application for a soft drink license requested by Harold Woodruff at 324 West First Street. No action was taken by the council on a second application for a soft drink license, which was not recommended for allowance.

No Trace of Missing Boy Found at Colony

A fleet of power launches and row boats was carrying on the work of dragging Rock river in the vicinity of the Dixon state hospital piling up today in a vain attempt to find the body of 12 year old Beanie Young, who escaped from the institution one week ago this morning. The cold and heavy rain, which has been in progress since yesterday afternoon and continued until dusk without respite.

Attendants at the institution were working in shifts today, manning the boats and the shore. The cold and heavy rain, which has been in progress since yesterday afternoon and continued until dusk without respite.

Illinois Girl's Body Found in German River

Leipzig, Germany, March 11.—The body of Miss Helen Reichert of Canton, Illinois, music student, recovered yesterday from the river Elster, is to be cremated Friday in the presence of her parents and the members of the American consular staff.

Miss Reichert disappeared February 18, leaving a note to a friend indicating she contemplated suicide. Her parents said she was subject to nervous breakdown before coming to Germany to study.

WM. ANDRUS IS BETTER

William Andrus of Grand Detour, who was taken to the hospital Saturday suffering with bronchitis, pneumonia, and whose condition was so serious Sunday that Mrs. Leonard Andrus was summoned from Portland, Ore., was reported some better today. Mrs. Andrus is expected to arrive in Dixon tomorrow morning.

HAND HURT IN WRINGER

Mrs. D. E. Shearer, 523 E. Fourth street, while operating a power wringer Monday, had the misfortune to have her left hand torn in the wringer necessitating the taking of six stitches.

MRS. STOKES ON STAND TODAY TO DEFEND HER NAME

Evidence of Pullman Trip Refuted By New Witnesses.

By Associated Press Leased Wire. Chicago, March 11.—Mrs. Helen Ellwood Stokes of Denver was called to the witness stand today in the trial of her husband, W. E. D. Stokes, charged with conspiracy to defame her.

Her appearance on the stand marked a departure under the Illinois statutes which prohibit a wife testifying against her husband. Judge Gemmill circumscribed that it would not be evidence against her husband, but rather a defense of attacks on her name.

Appearance of Mrs. Stokes on the stand today was held in abeyance for a time this morning to permit other witnesses to testify.

Mrs. Stokes had shared a Pullman berth with her cousin, Hal Millig, on two overnight trips in 1922.

Dr. Hall C. Billig, father of the couple named, testified that his son, Dr. Billig, had been in Chicago, except for short week end trips during 1922, the latter part of which was fixed by two sleeping car conductors as dates Billig is alleged to have traveled between Denver and Chicago with Mrs. Stokes.

Norman C. Portney and W. C. Gibson, neighbors of the Billigs, testified in corroboration of Dr. Billig's statements.

Leon Diggs, Mulatto actor, was recalled for completion of his cross examination started yesterday.

Mrs. Stokes was on the witness stand 30 minutes and was not cross examined. She made a general denial of the charges against her husband, Mr. Stokes and C. P. Burke and C. V. Hanson, Chicago sleeping car conductors who testified she had traveled overnight with men companions. She denied the charges against her husband, Mr. Stokes and C. P. Burke and C. V. DAWES CONDEMNED AND PRAISED TODAY IN ILLINOIS SENATE

His Speech Subject of Argument; Small is Victor in House.

By Associated Press Leased Wire. Springfield, Ill., March 11.—Criticism and praise of Vice President Dawes from across the floor of the Illinois Senate today as Republicans and Democrats indulged in a moment of levity.

The argument started when Senator Denver of Chicago, democratic leader, attacked Dawes from the floor and declared that men like Dawes will eventually pull down what is left of the republican party and give the honest democrats a chance.

The speech referred to the place to the battle of Bunker Hill and Senator Cuthbertson, republican of Bunker Hill, Illinois, took up the challenge and asked the senator to repeat his words about Bunker Hill.

Senator Harbour, in a serious speech, defended General Dawes and declared that any attack on such a man must come from a hopeless minority.

The finishing bit of repartee was contributed by Senator Kessinger of Aurora who said, "I understand we are having a debate on whether substitute conventions for primaries. If this passes the republicans are safe for all time as the honest democrats can never win when there is a convention."

One Bill to Governor.

Five bills were passed, one of which had already been passed by the House. The bill provides appropriations to meet the expenses of the Attorney General until the beginning of the next biennium and is the first piece of legislation to go to the Governor. The other bills go to the House.

They include: An appropriation for repairs to the Senate Chamber, an appropriation to pay salaries for the secretaries of judges in the supreme court, not provided for at the last session; an appropriation of $6,000 for highway maintenance and a bill which empowers county superintendents to acquire right of way for highways.

Five new bills were introduced, including a bill by Senator Denver prohibiting the exhibition of trained animals and a bill by Senator Kessinger appropriating $5,590.84 toward special assessments affecting armories in Chicago, Woodstock, Aurora, Kankakee and Joliet.

Small Wins in House.

By a vote of 91 to 46 the House today rejected a minority report of the joint House and Senate committee on rules which would require each of the state departments to file with the general assembly an itemized account of expenditures of state funds.

Party lines were shattered in the voting on the minority report, which was rejected by a vote of 91 to 46.

The first measure to receive unanimous support was one by Majority Leader J. H. P. McLean, of Washington, to grant police powers to watchmen in the state house.

The second was a bill by Representative James Rennie, of Buda, to amend the laws relating to the holding of chattel mortgages to record them in the county records office within ten days after their execution.

The bill was designed to protect the interests of creditors against whom judgment is often taken in courts outside of the county in which they live Rennie said.

Defeat of Senator's Bill.

An effort to pass a senator's bill designed to extend the time which town tax collectors may retain their books so that they will have at least thirty days in which to collect their taxes was defeated. The bill had passed the Senate with an emergency clause but the emergency feature was defeated in the House and the bill was temporarily withdrawn from further consideration.

Representative Louis E. Springer, of Wilmington, explained that it applied particularly to the small country towns of Cook County, in which residents will have only a few days in which to pay their taxes because of delay by the county clerk in certifying the books to the collector.

Objection to the bill by John Devine, of Dixon, and T. J. O'Grady, of Chicago, were that it would establish two different tax collecting laws for the state.

Steamer Crushed in Ice is Sinking; Crew Saved

By Associated Press Leased Wire. St. Johns, N. F., March 11.—The sailing steamer Stella Maria, one of the fleet which sailed from this port Saturday for the annual seal hunt, sent a radio message at daylight today that the ship had been crushed in the ice and was sinking. Her crew of 80 men had been taken off by a sister ship the Prospero, the message said.

IN THE FIRELIGHT—
The fire upon the hearth is low, And there is stillness everywhere And, like winged spirits, here and there

The fireplace shadows fluttering go, And as the shadows round me creep, A childish treble breaks the gloom, And softly from a further room Comes: "Now I lay me down to sleep."

And, somehow, with that little prayer And that sweet treble in my ears, My thought goes back to distant years, And lingers with a dear one there, And as I hear my child's amen, My mother's faith comes back to me—

Crouched at her side I seem to be, And mother hold my hands again, Oh, for an hour in that dear place— Oh, for the peace of that dear time— Oh, for that childish trust sublime— Oh, for a glimpse of mother's face! Yet, as the shadows round me creep, I do not seem to be alone, Sweet music of that treble tone And "Now I lay me down to sleep!" —Eugene Field.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS—
Raisins in Apples.
When baking apples stuff the hole made by removing the core with raisins.

For Damp Closets.
If a closet is damp, place a cup of quicklime in the corner and it will absorb the dampness and disinfect as well.

Soaking Curtains.
Soak curtains in salt water overnight when they are being washed for the first time. They will wash easier and look better.

Cinnamon Apples.
Add a few red cinnamon candies to apples when you bake them. The odor as well as the flavor will be improved.

Potato Tip.
Potatoes should never lie in cold water without salt.

ST. JAMES MISSIONARY SOCIETY—
The meeting of the St. James Missionary society has been postponed until Wednesday, March 18th, and will be an all-day meeting with a basket dinner at noon at the home of Mrs. Martha Shippert. Ladies are requested to take needles and thimbles, as sewing and darning will be done for the Orphanage. Everyone is cordially invited to attend, as a large attendance is desired.

A good program is anticipated. Attend and enjoy the meeting at the home of Mrs. Shippert.

Menus for a Family

Tested by C. SISTER MARY.

Breakfast—Stewed prunes, cereal with milk, crisp graham toast, soft cooked eggs, milk, coffee.
Luncheon—Stuffed eggs, health bread and butter sandwiches, rhubarb tapioca, milk tea.
Dinner—Vegetable soup, broiled halibut steak with oyster sauce, baked potatoes, scalloped tomatoes, button radishes, celery, pineapple sponge, rye bread, milk, coffee.

Although eggs are planned for breakfast and luncheon the stuffed eggs in the luncheon menu are so different that the cook can't be accused of the deadly "sameness" in her menu.
The breakfast eggs are suggested for children of school age who must eat a cold luncheon.
Stuffed Eggs.
Four hard-boiled eggs, 1 pound beef greens, 1 small onion, 1 slice bacon, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon paprika, 2 tablespoons vinegar.
Cut eggs in halves lengthwise and remove yolks. Cook greens until tender and divide into two portions. Fry bacon until crisp. Mince onion and cook in bacon fat until a golden brown. Chop one portion of the greens and add mashed egg yolks, onion, minced bacon, vinegar, salt and paprika. Mix thoroughly and fill egg whites with mixture. Put the remaining greens into a well-buttered shallow baking dish. Make eight depressions and put a stuffed egg in each hollow. Put into a hot oven to reheat.

Rhubarb Tapioca.
One cup tapioca, 2 cups water, 3 cups rhubarb cut in inch lengths, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/4 cups sugar, 1/2 teaspoon soda.
Cook tapioca in water with salt until clear. Four boiling water over rhubarb to more than cover, and add soda. Let boil up once and drain. Add to boiling tapioca with sugar. Cook a few minutes. Mold to chill and become firm. Serve with sweetened whipped cream or sugar and cream.
Broiled Halibut Steak With Oyster Sauce.
Two pounds halibut steak, lemon juice, 1 pint oysters, 3 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 cups milk, salt and pepper, few gratings nutmeg.
The halibut should be cut in steaks one inch thick. Wipe with a cheesecloth wrung out of cold water. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and place in a well-oiled broiler. Broil 20 minutes turning often. Place on a hot platter and squeeze lemon juice over fish. Melt butter in frying pan, add oysters cleaned and drained of their liquor and cook over a low fire until the edges curl. Remove oysters to fish. Stir flour in butter in frying pan and when blended slowly stir in milk. Season with salt and pepper and cook until thick and smooth. Sprinkle oysters very lightly with nutmeg, pour over sauce and serve. (Copyright, 1925, NEA Service Inc.)

SOCIAL REGISTER NOT SO VERY EXCLUSIVE—
By Associated Press Leased Wire.
New York, Mar. 11.—The name of Mrs. Alice Beatrice Jones Rhinelander, former laundress and housemaid, who is being sued by her husband, Leonard K. Rhinelander, for annulment of their marriage on grounds that she is of negro descent, appears in the March supplement to the Social Register, it became known today.

The entry appears as "Rhinelander, Mrs. Leonard K. (Philip) Jones, Miss Alice B. married October 14, at New Rochelle, N. Y." Names which have disappeared from the register include Millicent Rogers, who married Count Ludwig Salzer-Hoegstraten; Mrs. James A. Stillman and Mrs. W. E. D. Stokes.

Were Guests of Mrs. W. D. Hartzell
A party composed of several Ashton ladies drove to Dixon yesterday and spent a most delightful afternoon with Mrs. W. D. Hartzell at her home on North Brinton avenue. The Ashton ladies brought well-filled baskets and following an afternoon of visiting and social chat enjoyed a bountiful basket luncheon.

Status of Women Has Changed Much

Galesburg, March 11.—More equitable solution of social and economic problems by combining the viewpoints of men and women and thus "striking a fair balance on all problems of public interest," may be one of the results of increased activity of women in the business of government, Mrs. Rena Elrod, Chicago, woman member of the state legislature, told members of the John Ericsson Society here today.

"Perhaps nothing has changed more in this changing world of ours than the status of women," Mrs. Elrod said. "Women lay no claims to more intelligence than men but it is an inherent trait of woman to go into details and for that reason in many walks of life she is more thorough than men who are inclined to have a viewpoint of subject matters as a whole. By considering the two divergent views a balance is struck and a far more equitable solution can be arrived at than would otherwise be possible."
"When, just a few short years ago, full citizenship was granted to women it was taken seriously. And that we might be good citizens in knowledge as well as in word citizenship classes were organized in women's clubs and civic organizations throughout the country with the result that the predominant principle of progressive women's organizations today is citizenship and all that the name implies."

It is a significant fact that one-fifth of the women of the United States are engaged in gainful occupations and several million women not so engaged are active in clubs. A woman's club is a preparatory school for almost any vocation and a woman who follows all branches of club work closely is almost sure to find herself for political life, whether she realizes it or not.

Every advance in civilization brings responsibilities as well as privileges. Citizenship implies responsibilities and therefore women, in making a study of government, began with the precinct and studied every phase of government, finding, in fact, that a practical housekeeping, only on a larger scale than we are accustomed to in our homes.
"Women are not asking for recognition because they are women but because they furnish about one-half of the population, the half which has hitherto been without representation. It is certainly unfair to harshly criticize women in politics or to say that best time they have made and men should remember, with their several thousand years of political privileges as a background, that the first hundred years are always the hardest."

Searching For "Song of Peace"

Chicago.—(By the Associated Press).—A "Song of Peace," that may rank in patriotism with the national anthem, is the object of a search that was started here today by Mrs. George Palmer, president of the Illinois State Federation of Women's Clubs.
With the co-operation of the federation chairman of music, Mrs. E. G. Murray of Chicago, Mrs. Palmer, best time they have made and men should remember, with their several thousand years of political privileges as a background, that the first hundred years are always the hardest."

Regarding the requirements of the Song of Peace, Mrs. Palmer said: "It must be strong and patriotic in conception, truly American in sentiment, in thought, singing of a peace not purchased at any price but a peace which means honor, security and dignity for the United States. A piece which best time they have made and men should remember, with their several thousand years of political privileges as a background, that the first hundred years are always the hardest."

"A song which does not belittle our conquests of the past nor the deeds of our heroes, but sings of a universal peace, a song which shows that our great America is willing to lead the way and help the rest of mankind, that while she is eager to take her place in the great brotherhood of nations, and through her wealth and numbers help those who are poorer and weaker, her first thought, like all wise and loving parents, must be for the good of her own children."
"No international consciousness is worth anything which is not preceded by a strong and forceful national consciousness. Loving our neighbors at the expense of our own families is not commendable, though it may sound very altruistic and creditable. Let us share our charity but let it begin at home."

"This must be the underlying theme of the song or it will not be accepted."

"Credit for the idea of a song of peace was given J. W. Hamilton of St. Paul, Minn., by Mrs. Palmer, who wrote her recommending it several months ago."

"Mon Dan Min" to Be Given Thursday Eve

On Thursday evening, March 12th, at 8 o'clock in the auditorium at the Christian church, under the auspices of the Woman's Club of Dixon, a beautiful cantata and program will be given, under the direction of Mrs. Maude Ames Goodsell. The name of the cantata is "Mon Dan Min," the music and poem being written by Paul Bliss, the theme being unusually original and appealing. It is written for treble voices. Mr. Hallenberg, a delightful speaker, will talk on "Characteristics of the American Indian," before the rendition of the cantata, as a sort of introduction.
The members of the Woman's Club, under whose auspices the entertainment is given, will not pay admission, as this is covered in their dues, but rest of the audience will be charged a nominal admission. No doubt there will be anxious to hear the entertainment will more than crowd the auditorium of the church. Everyone is invited to attend and enjoy this splendid program.

The program will be:
Violin Solo—Miss Alice Coppins.
Trio, "Fly, Singing Bird," E. Elgar—Mesdames Reedy, Hagerman and Rosbrook.
Violin Obligato—Miss Alice Coppins.
Prelude, "Characteristics of the American Indians"—Robert Hallenberg.
Cantata, "Mon Dan Min," Paul Bliss, American Indian Legend.
Poem read by Mrs. Adolph Eichler.
Accompanist, Mrs. Eleanor Coppins Chapman.

Among the Ojibwa Indians each spring a chosen maid must walk alone around the field of corn at night with trailing blanket, thus providing magic protection for the growing corn from beetle, bug and crow and insuring a bountiful harvest.

The Legend.
When the corn-plant first is showing, Choose they out the fairest maiden Who must walk alone at night time.

Walk a round the corn-field growing, With her bright and beaded blanket, Walk alone and unattended, Weaving magic with her blanket.

Magic with her trailing blanket So dreadfully nor beetle In the corn-field ever may enter, Neither bug nor caterpillar.

So no crow with beak like sharp knife May come in and pluck the young corn.

So no blight nor sun's hot burning May delay the tender growing.

Phidian Art Club In Happy Meeting

The Phidian Art Club held its regular meeting Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. A. L. Harlow as hostess. One of the important announcements of the business meeting concerned the Civic Music Assn. Miss Harshbarger of Chicago will be here on the evening of March 18 and wishes to meet all the members of the association at the Chamber of Commerce rooms at 7:30 o'clock. She has a very winning personality and will have much to say that will be interesting and instructive.

A musical number, quite unusual, opened the program of the afternoon, Russell Mason playing two selections of the flute. The first was "La Pasion" by Koehier and the second was "Romance of the Rose" by Popp. He was ably accompanied by Miss Frances Ackert, and their music provided most enjoyable entertainment.

Miss Dorothy Armstrong read a very excellent paper on "The Modern Essay, a Forecast." She told briefly the history of this literary form from Montaigne, down to the present and noted in an interesting way the changes in the attitude of the writers of the different periods. She said the growth of newspapers and magazines has influenced the modern essayist, and now the popular special article rivals the short story in interest for the reader. She closed her paper with the question, "Why are there no women essayists?" and then to bring home the points outlined in the paper, she read two short essays of Christopher Morley and left her hearers with a most pleasant impression of "The Modern Essay."

Mrs. Burnham and Mrs. Collins Dysart assisted Mrs. Harlow in serving delicious refreshments after the program.

"TOO MANY CHURCHES."

A minister in Patterson, N. J., resigning his charge, says: "Patterson, it seems to me, is cursed with too many churches; so much so that denominational competition borders on the irrational."

"Cursed with too many churches" is a striking phrase. The ordinary notion is that there can not be too many. Yet it is coming to be a familiar observation that the average city has more churches than it can support decently and operate effectively.

"Denominational competition" is another telling phrase. Many a village little more than a cross-roads, has half a dozen churches, representing as many denominations, with none of them able to pay the pastor a living salary and with their religious spirit largely nullified by the bitterness of competition and sense of failure. Some competition is doubtless a good thing in churches as elsewhere, but in this field it seems to have passed all bounds.

Fortunately there is now a growing tendency at last for some of the denominations to get together, merging their membership and equipment. This is an admirable thing wherever there is no essential difference of belief or method. Belief in God and adherence to the Ten Commandments constitute after all, the essentials of true religion. Add acceptance of Christ as the son of God, and one has Christianity.

STATE UNIVERSITY'S PROGRESS.

That the University of Illinois has asked for no increase of funds or the new biennium is gratifying to Illinois taxpayers, who already feel themselves heavily burdened. This though some neighboring state universities have asked for heavy increases. The amount asked for by President Kinley for the two years is five and a quarter millions per year. It is said to be the hope of the trustees of the Illinois institution that it may be a number of bienniums before an increase over this sum per year is considered necessary, although it is admitted that there is no limit to the amount that a great university like this one can usefully expend in education and expansion.

This state of affairs indicates that Illinois has at last reached the point of generosity toward its great educational institution which President Kinley and the trustees decide to be sufficient. It is the program that four millions and a quarter of the amount asked for will be expended each year for the coming two years for operation and maintenance of the university and its invaluable research work, while the remaining million will be available for erection of a second unit of the library, erection of a facade and the addition of one end of the armory, a building for the agricultural department, an additional wing to the men's gymnasium, and an addition to the pharmacy building in Chicago.

With the proper maintenance contemplated, and a million a year for new construction—Illinois already having a university of which it is proud—it should not be long before the institution will outclass any university in the country.

RECORD OF WORLD COURT.

With President Coolidge in his inaugural address giving his unqualified endorsement to the permanent court of international justice at The Hague, and with the house of representatives having expressed its approval by the overwhelming vote of 301 to 28, there should be special interest in the record made by the court thus far, as reported by Manley O. Hudson, Harvard professor of international law.

The court, he says, in its short career has returned three judgments and ten advisory opinions.

"In each case full opportunity to present views has been given to all interested governments and even private organizations. With respect to each question, the opinion of the court has been accepted as a guide in difficult problems of international policy. If the court can proceed along these lines, and if governments continue to make use of its services, who will grudge saying that a long step has been taken on the road out of the swamps of conflict?"

This world court, as Congressman Burton reminded the house when that body voted on his resolution of adherence, has been endorsed with as much unanimity as any proposal ever put before the American people.

"It has received," he said, "the express endorsement of the American Bar Association, the Federal Council of Churches, individual churches and clergymen, men's and women's clubs in every state, and American Legion posts. It is very natural that this should be true, because if there is any one traditional policy of our own United States, it is to seek an amicable settlement of controversies between nations."

Now what has the United States senate to say on the subject?

AIR TRAVEL.

The trip of the giant dirigible, Los Angeles, to Bermuda again demonstrates the safety, speed and comfort of air travel. There is no real reason why we should not have regularly operated passenger-carrying airships and planes.

Flying, while it is still in its infancy, has passed the experimental stage. Demonstration after demonstration has proved it a practical means of transportation.

Is the nation that brought the flying machine to perfection going to be the last to reap the benefits of this great invention?

BY CHESTER D. ROWELL

"I cry again for facts," said Owen Young, speaking at Johns Hopkins on the proposed Walter Hines Page foundation for a school of international relations.

Facts? They are easy. If we will pay the very little they cost. Research experts are cheap—much cheaper than advocates or propagandists. Practically every board, if we will endow foundations to pay that, they will dig out the facts.

The harder thing is the mind to our accurate quality.

Scientists may have it, but they are not our leaders. The clergy exhort, lawyers argue, politicians orate or intrigue, business men "sell" ideas or "talk points," and journalists "play up" a "story"—what have these pseudo-mental processes to do with facts?

By these we have been trained, and are led and ruled. Fact-mindedness is the last achievement of human enlightenment. There is no such incorrigible theorist as your self-styled "practical" man.

Mr. Young and his associates can get us the facts far faster than we can develop the mind to utilize them.

Another educational foundation which is not seeking funds, but announces that it has them, is the Guggenheim endowment of scholarships.

This too, marks the new emphasis on facts. The Rhodes scholarships are primarily for the culture of men. The Guggenheims are for the culture of ideas. Young men of promise, of promise and personality and gathering them in England, from all over the world, to profit by its best cultural advantages and return to their own countries equipped as leaders of men.

The Guggenheim scholarships will search out tried specialists, competent to delve for truth, and send them out of America into all the world, to discover and bring back new knowledge.

Mr. Young dominates in the one case; results in the other. The world will profit by both.

ONE WAY OF DOING IT RIGHT

It is hard to do it political machinery to business methods. Witness two examples, now in the news.

The House of Representatives, despairing of getting a log-rolled public building bill passed, finally proposed to surrender uncontrolled discretion to the postmaster general and the secretary of the treasury, by appropriating 25 millions a year, for six years, to be spent where and as they please.

The Senate may or may not agree. The scheme is at least more endurable than log-rolling, which, under existing methods, is its only alternative. But the real business method, of controlled discretion, will only be possible when Congress is ready to admit cabinet officers to its sessions, to hear and question them, as business boards do with their executives—and as, for that matter, practically every other national legislative assembly in the world does with the executives of its government.

The other illustration is the proposal of the United States Chamber of Commerce that increases in postal salaries shall be graduated according to the places where the employees are stationed.

That would, of course, allocate most of the increase to the cities, where living is most expensive.

Shattered Love

Should a woman tell her husband all the secrets of her past? Should she uncover things gone—but not forgotten? Can she hope to find happiness while hiding the truth? In the April issue of True Story Magazine, a woman to whom love and marriage brought only the deepest misery and despair, frankly tells what it means to seek happiness in married life while haunted by the ghostly specters of her past mistakes. Her story appears complete in April True Story under the title of "My Own Story of Love," and is but one of 18 remarkable features in this issue of America's greatest magazine.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS
by Olive Roberts Barton
NO. 3—JACK FROST HEARS A LECTURE

"You aren't fooling me a bit," said the hare, crossly.

"My!" said the March Hare as he galloped along with the Twins on his back. "I'd no idea that things were so backward. It's all Jack Frost's fault. I'll have to find him."

"What is Jack Frost's fault?" asked Nick.

"That spring hasn't got a better start," answered the hare. "Why, just look! Scarcely a bit of green showing anywhere. No pussy willows and not a clover leaf, or a bit of water cress, or a speck of hepatica, the little star flowers that come up first."

He talked as fast as he ran, the March Hare did, and the Twins began to wonder if he really knew where he was going.

He kept muttering, "Yes, sir, he's been here. Yes, sir, he's been here. Tool and here and here and here. Every time he saw a tiny spot of snow behind a stone he would say, 'Here and here and here.'"

"What are you looking for and what are you muttering about?" asked Nancy.

"Jack Frost! Jack Frost!" said the March Hare. "Didn't I tell you? Those are his footprints, all that white stuff is where he's been trying to dodge behind stones. Everywhere he steps he leaves snow and ice tracks. There! Look at that! He's been around here very recently. Very recently indeed! I may run across him any minute. Ah! What did I tell you! Look behind that tree. There's his nose sticking out!"

The March Hare stopped and pointed with his ears toward a large oak, and the children could see a long white sharp thing sticking out behind it that certainly did look like a nose.

"Are you there?" called the March Hare.

No answer.

Fancy a majority of Congress voting to give benefits to the constituents of a few of its members which are denied, or granted in less degree, to the constituents of most of its members!

LET THEM HAVE IT OUT IN OPEN

"I charge that the Department of Agriculture is lobbying against this bill," said Senator Ashurst. In a speech delivered in the senate, but addressed to the Arizona cattle raisers.

Of course! Lobbying by cabinet officers began in 1890, when Congress refused to hear Alexander Hamilton, secretary of the treasury, explain his finance bill, and relegated him to the lobby, where he and Jefferson (for once agreed) passed the bill by trading the present location of the city of Washington for the necessary votes.

It has continued since, and will last until Congress rescinds that original blunder and invites cabinet members out of the lobby on to the floor. Then, visible, responsible leadership will be substituted for invisible irresponsible influence. Congress has chafed under the consequence of that mistake for a century and a third, while practically every other legislative assembly in the world has demonstrated by practical experience that the other system works better.

Let Senator Ashurst and the secretary of agriculture have it out openly in the Senate, where the honest man and the honest cause can win, or the people can find out why not.

Diamonds in their natural state have a dull red color.

NIGHT LETTER FROM JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT TO LESLIE PRESCOTT

Dear Leslie, Saw your mother yesterday. She was looking fine and seems very happy to go. I am sure the trip will do her much good. Mother insists that I shall wait until Saturday before going to Atlantic City. Says if I could wait here for a day or two to see Mrs. Hamilton, I can certainly wait a day or two longer for my own mother. I am furious with her for I am sure she could be ready to go before. However, I see nothing to do but to give in to her this time. Had a wire from Mrs. Atherton this morning which said: "Sent you your mail to Atlantic City. You should see it, the moment you arrive." Of course, Mrs. Atherton thinks I will be with you tomorrow morning. I don't know what is in the mail. You had better open it and if you find anything very pressing you can write it to me. I am particularly unhappy not to be with you. Will stay at hotel until tomorrow noon, hoping to hear from you either by wire or telephone.

JACK.

Letter From Mamie Keeler to John Prescott—Opened by Leslie Prescott

So it has come, Jack—that going out of my life you were always telling about. You are going back to that beautiful wife of yours and conventional, and I am to sail away in that different direction which you have commanded me.

Jack, dear, I can not understand why the good God should make men like you—men so cruel and so tender, men so pitying and so ruthless, men so generous and so selfish.

Of course, I know all you have said in the enclosed letter is true—you see I am sending it back to you so that you may know that I never intended to use it against you in any way. I want you to understand that as far as I am concerned I intend to play the game fairly to the end.

The whole plan was a splendid one, but what we did not take into consideration was that you did not realize that I might fall in love with you—for that matter, neither did I. I do not see, however, why we should not have thought of this contingency. We were not children, you know. We ought to have known that it was not on the cards that a woman, under the circumstances, could resist you or any other man who had been as kind to her as you have been to me. For this I am grateful.

Good Dispositions Invaluable

You can't watch your disposition too carefully. A crab and a grounder are rarely successful. If your liver and stomach are in an unhealthy condition you can not have a sunny disposition because they affect the brain as well as the entire system. May's Wonderful Remedy has been usually successful in such cases. Our advice to everyone troubled in this way especially when accompanied with bloating in the stomach, is to try this remedy. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. At all druggists.—Adv.

BARRE, SON OF KAZAN

James Oliver Curwood

A LOVE EPIC OF THE FAR NORTH

Copyright, 1917, by Doubleday, Page & Co.

"BARRE, SON OF KAZAN," a Vitaphone Picture, With Wolf, the War Dog, is an Adaptation of This Story

SYNOPSIS

Hidden beneath a huge rock, Barre, the untamed wolf-dog, was terrified to see Pierrot, the half-breed trapper, and Nepeese, his daughter, shoot and kill Wapago, the black bear. This was slaughter, but for the two human creatures it was the business of life. Nepeese went after Barre and tried to entice him from his hiding-place. For the first time the dog had a name. It was the Indian princess who called him Barre.

CHAPTER VIII—Continued

In that moment Nepeese felt the pressure of the rock on her shoulder, and into the eyes that had been glowing softly at Barre there shot a sudden wild look of horror. And then there came from her lips a cry that was not like any other sound Barre had ever heard in the wilderness—wild, piercing, filled with agonized fear. Pierrot did not hear that first cry. But he heard the second and the third—and then scream after scream as the Willow's tender body was slowly crushed under the settling mass. He ran toward it with the speed of the wind. The cries were weak—dying away. He saw Barre as he came out from under the rock and ran into the chasm, and in the same instant he saw a part of the Willow's dress and her moccasined feet. The rest of her was hidden under the death trap. Like a madman Pierrot began digging. When a few moments later he drew Nepeese out from under the boulder she was white and deathly still. Her eyes were closed. His hand could not feel that she was living, and a great moan of anguish rose out of his soul. He knew how to fight for a life. He tore open her dress and found that she was not crushed as he had feared. Then he ran for water. When he returned, the Willow's eyes were open and she was gasping for breath. "The blessed saints be praised!" sobbed Pierrot, falling on his knees at her side. "Nepeese, ma Nepeese!"

"The blessed saints be praised!" sobbed Pierrot, falling on his knees at her side.

CHAPTER IX

Impelled by the wild alarm of the Willow's terrible cries and the sight of Pierrot dashing madly toward him from the dead body of Wapago, Barre did not stop running until it seemed as though his lungs could not draw another breath. When he stopped, he was well out of the canyon and headed for the beaver pond.

Exactly wherein lay Barre's fears it would be difficult to say—but surely it was not because of Nepeese. The Willow had chased him hard. She had flung herself upon him. He had felt the clutch of her hands and the smother of her soft hair, and yet of her he was not afraid! If he stopped now and then in his flight and looked back, it was to see if Nepeese was following. He would not have run hard from her—alone. Her eyes and voice and hands had set something stirring in him; he was filled with a greater yearning and a greater loneliness now—and that night he dreamed troubled dreams.

Barre was glad when the dawn came. He did not seek for food, but went down to the pond. There was little hope and anticipation in his manner now. He remembered that, as plainly as animal ways could talk, Umisk and his playmates had told him they wanted nothing to do with him. And yet the fact that they were there took away from his loneliness. It was more than loneliness. The wolf in him was submerged. The dog was master.

In one of the larger canals Barre surprised a big beaver towing a four-foot cutting of birch as thick through as a man's leg—half a dozen breakfasts and dinners and suppers in that one cargo. The four or five inner barks of the birch are what might be called the bread and butter and potatoes of the beaver menu, while the more highly prized barks of the willow and young alder take the place of meat and pie.

Barre smelled curiously of the birch cutting after the old beaver had abandoned it in flight, and then went on. He did not try to hide himself now, and at least half a dozen beavers had a good look at him before he came to the point where the pond narrowed down to the width of the stream, almost half a mile from the dam. Then he wandered on. All that morning he hovered about the pond, showing himself openly.

In their big mud and stick strongholds the beavers held a council of war. They were distinctly puzzled.

It may be that the beavers discussed the matter fully among themselves. It is possible that Umisk and his playmates told their parents of their adventures, and of how Barre made no move to harm them when he could quite easily have caught them. It is also more than likely that the old beavers who had fled from Barre that morning gave an account of their adventures, again emphasizing the fact that the stranger, while frightening them, had shown no disposition to attack them. All this is quite possible, for if beavers can make a large part of a continent's history, and can perform engineering feats that nothing less than dynamite can destroy, it is only reasonable to suppose that they have some way of making one another understand.

However this may be, courageous old Beaver-tooth took it upon himself to end the suspense.

It was early in the afternoon that for the third or fourth time Barre walked out on the dam. This dam was fully two hundred feet in length, but at no point did the water run over it, the overflow finding its way through narrow sluices. A week or two ago Barre could have crossed to the opposite side of the pond on this dam, but now—at the far end—Beaver-tooth and his engineers were adding a new section of dam, and in order to accomplish their work more easily, they had flooded fully fifty yards of the low ground on which they were working. The main dam held a fascination for Barre. It was strong with the smell of beaver. The top of it was high and dry, and there were dozens of smoothly worn little hollows in which the beavers had taken their sun-baths. In one of these hollows Barre stretched himself out, with his eyes on the pond. Not a ripple stirred its velvety smoothness. Not a sound broke the drowsy stillness of the afternoon. The beavers might have been dead or asleep, for all the stir they made. And yet they knew that Barre was on the dam. Where he lay, the sun fell in a warm flood, and it was so comfortable that after a time he had difficulty in keeping his eyes open to watch the pond. Then he fell asleep.

Just how Beaver-tooth sensed this fact is a mystery. Five minutes later he came up quietly, without a splash or a sound, within fifty yards of Barre. For a few moments he scarcely moved in the water. Then he swam very slowly parallel with the dam across the pond. At the other side he drew himself ashore, and for another minute sat as motionless as a stone, with his eyes on that part of the dam where Barre was lying.

A few yards away Barre was almost hidden in his hollow, only the top of his shiny black body appearing to Beaver-tooth's scrutiny. To get a better look, the old beaver spread his flat tail out beyond him and rose to a sitting posture on his hind-quarters, his two front paws held squirrel-like over his breast. In this pose he was fully three feet tall. He probably weighed forty pounds, and in some ways he resembled one of those fat, good-natured, silly-looking dogs that go largely to stomach. But his brain was working with amazing celerity. Suddenly he gave the hard mud of the dam a single slap with his tail—and Barre sat up. Instantly he saw Beaver-tooth, and stared. Beaver-tooth stared. For a full half-minute neither moved the thousandth part of an inch. Then Barre stood up and wagged his tail.

That was enough. Dropping to his fore-feet, Beaver-tooth waddled leisurely to the edge of the dam and dived over. He was neither cautious nor in very great haste now. He made a great commotion in the water and swam boldly back and forth under Barre. When he had done this several times, he cut straight up the pond to the largest of the three houses and disappeared. Five minutes after Beaver-tooth's exploit word was passing quickly among the colony. The stranger—Barre—was not a lynx. He was not a fox. He was not a wolf. Moreover, he was very young—and harmless.

FINE INCREASE IN EARNINGS OF MID-WEST U. CO.

Holding Co. of I. N. U. Shows Wonderful Report for 1924

O. A. Mather, financial expert for the Chicago Tribune, has the following story concerning the Middle West Utilities Co., holding company for the Illinois Northern Utilities Co., of this city.

As its share in the development of a great superpower system in the middle west, the Middle West Utilities company last year expended nearly $27,000,000 in construction alone, the largest amount for any year in its history.

The idea of a superpower system was fathered by Samuel Insull of Chicago, and the Middle West Utilities company is part of the insull organization. The efficacy of the idea is shown by the company's earnings record. While net earnings last year increased 22 per cent over 1923, less than 2.5 per cent of the gain resulted from new properties. The balance of the gain was the result of generally higher operating efficiency.

Income of $7,473,461

Output of electricity last year was 1,095,325,363 kilowatt hours. At the end of the year there were 543,401 customers and 87,927 stockholders.

Total income of the company in 1924 was $7,473,461, a gain of 22 per cent over 1923. Surplus earnings, after all charges and dividends on the prior lien and preferred shares, were $2,916,796 equivalent to $14.43 a share on the common stock, compared with $11.62 a share in 1923. The funded debt was reduced from $12,603,200 to $5,562,990. There are practically no current liabilities. Stock last year outstanding total $57,092,429 and surplus is $3,233,240. Total assets stand at $69,848,953, an increase of $7,053,009 over 1923.

U. C. T. of Dixon Out Against Gasoline Tax

At a meeting of Dixon Council U. C. T. No. 558 held at their hall Saturday March 7, 1925, the following resolutions were read and adopted:

Resolved: That the members of this council numbering 158 traveling men who make their homes in Dixon, have a fixed expense account each week and this additional tax would be a burden on them.

Resolved: That this tax is unnecessary at this time and that we deplore the action taken at a meeting of the County Board favoring the tax.

Resolved: That the payroll of our members reaches the vast sum of $27,000 each month, this amount being sent in by firms not located here, but expended here for necessities of life.

And be it further resolved: That the members of this Council who own their autos for business only are opposed to this tax and are asking our Representatives to do all in their power to kill the tax before them or to be presented at this session.

A copy of these resolutions to be mailed to our Senator, Members of the House of Representatives, Dixon Evening Telegraph and to each Council in the State of Illinois.

FOR SALE AT YOUR DRUGGIST

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Sometime last year the city commissioners of Dixon passed an ordinance designating Lincoln Highway as an arterial way, and had boulevard signs erected on all streets intersecting with the south side to Seventh Street, and from Water street on the north side to McKenney street, thereby denoting that all traffic should stop before entering the highway and that means to stop, not merely slack up. There is not a question of a doubt but that the action of the council was not only commendable, but timely, and it ought to be the pleasure of all fair minded people to comply, but it is very exasperating to note the absolute indifference to note the absolute indifference by some auto drivers; they pay no attention, but seem to drive faster at such points than at other places.

It seems that the time is here, when if this ordinance is not to be complied with, then it should be repealed, in order that all drivers may have an equal chance, for the way it is at present the danger is much greater than if we abide by the state law, of keeping the one on the right having the right of way. Unless something is done in the near future there will be many accidents and perhaps loss of life.

THE WILBUR LUMBER CO.

(By V. S. Mullen.)

The Wilbur Lumber Co. yard at Dixon is one of the seventeen yards maintained by this company throughout the states of Illinois and Wisconsin. From the time of its establishment here in 1898 it has been an important factor in the encouragement of the up-building of the city of Dixon and the increasing of the standard of farm buildings and development of the agricultural possibilities of Lee county.

Although a line yard, under the management of H. W. Harms, this company has taken an active part in all civic matters and has shown conclusively that it is interested in Dixon which is not a general characteristic of line institutions. Mr. Harms is one of the younger business men of the city, aggressive in the management of this business and operates not alone from the standpoint of making the branch a financial success to the company but from the standpoint of making it an asset and a credit to the city and county where in it is located.

It is significant as to the respect that is held for this yard as a business institution by the residents of Dixon and Lee county when it is stated that this yard from a point of sales and volume of business handled is one of the largest of the seventeen yards maintained by the company in the two states as mentioned above.

The Wilbur Lumber Company of Dixon carries a most extraordinary stock of lumber and building materials. This stock includes all kinds of lumber, roofing, cement, plaster, doors, sash, moldings, shingles, in fact everything that could possibly be needed in the construction of the smallest building to the most pretentious home or business block. The extensive buying connections maintained by the company through their purchasing for so many yards makes available to all their yards a wider and more diversified stock of materials, which can be sold on a cheaper margin of profit, than can be handled by most independent yards.

One of the attractive features of this company is the excellent plan service which is maintained and which is available for every prospective builder. This plan service is not only a saving from the standpoint of architecture but is valuable in the point of suggestions to the prospective builder. These plans are available to everyone and there is a plan for every class of building with specifications for construction work and includes city and farm homes, barns, granaries, hog houses, dairy barns, etc.

Another extensive phase of the business of the firm is the coal and fuel department. A complete stock of hard and soft coal, coke, Petroleum coke and fuel of this type is always kept on hand, the grades of coal carried are standard and the very best the market affords. The service given in this department is unusually prompt and efficient and particular care is taken in their delivery so that lawn and property damage is eliminated.

Many nationally advertised lines are handled by the Wilbur Lumber Company, among with are Portland Cement, Red Top Plaster, Square Deal Fence, Curtiss Woodwork, Upson Board, Esque Paint, manufactured by the Morgan Paint Co., and Black Arrow soft coal. These are only a few of the nationally known lines that are carried but are typical of the class of materials that are handled through this yard.

If the average reader were to take a trip through this yard which is located at 305 Commercial Alley, he would readily recognize the fact that a modern lumber yard is not just a place where a few "boards" are kept for sale, but a large and substantial institution lending weight to the city's reputation as a distributing and commercial center.

The WELL-DRESSED MAN By BEAUNASH

Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligation Of Every Occasion

Dress For The Occasion

There is a venerable jest going the rounds that one can't tell now-a-days whether the fashionable "flapper" of a debutante is dressed for a reception or an operation. Similarly, men's clothes became, at one time, such a jumble of town and country; sport and street; that they were neither formal, semi-formal nor informal, but a mongrel mixture of the three. Knickers, designed for the course and the club exclusively, were worn here, there and everywhere except where they belong. Soft collars threatened to become the neckdress for every place and purpose, from backwoods almost to ballroom. Rubber-soled shoes marched into town. "Slam-down" or reversed brim hats, meant for field and knockabout alone, went to the head for business. The era of "careless carelessness" in dress, regardless of the traditional obligation of occasion, had men in its grip and was in a fair way to make a pup of correct usage.

Now, The Well-Dressed Man is not merely one who wears clothes of fine quality and good style that fit him and become him. He is one who wears them where and when they ought to be worn; who draws proper distinctions between different conditions and circumstances, who has what the high-brow terms social sophistication and the low-brow calls horse sense; who recognizes, with Lord Chesterfield, that "manners must adorn fashions" and that what is not good manners is never good style.

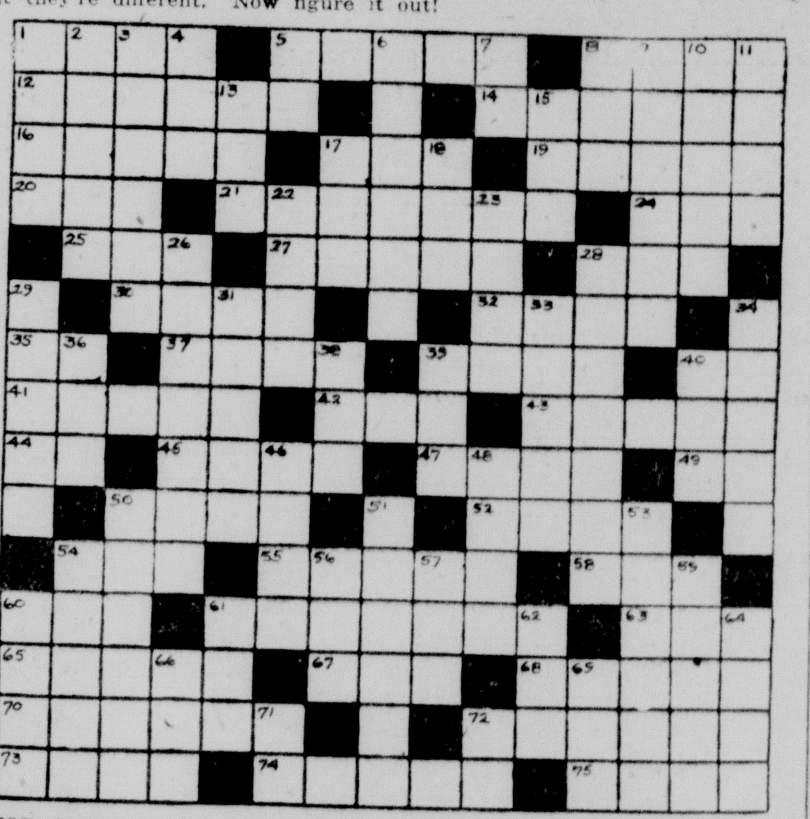

Keep your town and business clothes apart from your country and sporting clothes. Don't try to make one outfit cover every place and purpose. That is very like cooking, dining, sleeping and entertaining company in one room. Possess a wardrobe sufficiently varied to give you a reasonable choice and change of dress, from field to function. Keep your clothes in orderly arrangement, so that you may know in an instant what you have and what you need. Replenish frequently. Don't let your wardrobe run down. Don't buy only by the season; buy by your needs.

The 2-button, peaked or semi-peaked lapel suit, portrayed in the accompanying sketch, is a smart Springtime style-model for young men and men who are not young, but refuse to admit it. It has the soft front; the fairly straight-hanging back and no vent. The front is gradually rounded off. The coat has flap pockets; is quarter-lined and roundabout 80 inches long. Trousers are fairly, though not excessively, wide. This is one of the correct styles for town, lounge and business wear in any color that is becoming to you.

ANSWER TO YESTERDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE:

WIDE WATERS

By CAPTAIN A. E. DINGLE

STORY BY N. A. SERVICE INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

ALDEN DRAKE, formerly a sailor, grown soft and flabby through a life of idle ease, ships aboard the clipper Orontes as "boy," under the command of—

JAKE STEVENS, whose enmity he quickly incurs because of a mutual love for—

MARY MANNING, daughter of the owner, who is a passenger. At Cape Town, Stevens is superseded as captain by Drake, whose lawyers have seen to the purchase of the Orontes during its cruise. Stevens is reduced to the rank of chief mate.

The Orontes is becalmed in the Straits off Java, then freed. The accident was due to Drake's carelessness, and now Drake comes to stand before his new captain and "face the music."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Mr. Stevens," Drake began, "I don't want to dig up a lot of old troubles. I think the quickest way is the best. I want to my first, to you and Mary, that I have held an inquiry into the stranding of the Orontes, and have found myself guilty."

"You've what?" gasped Jake. Mary pressed his arm warningly. Drake continued: "I have decided that whatever ill has happened to the ship or her people, has been directly due to my pursuit of a fad. As I see it now, it meant only sport to me, but something very much more serious to others."

Jake stood dumb. He could feel Mary's hand trembling on his arm. Forward, a concertina stopped playing, and Bill Gadget bawled, so that all might hear:

"Stand up, ye lubbers! Health to 'th' Captain and 'is passengers!'"

There was silence, then three awkward, embarrassed cheers. The concertina started up again, and a song was volleyed forth with all the steam of rum-tickled throats.

Drake paused while the cheers went up, then went on:

"So, to get the gist of this business, Mister Stevens, I did not enter the stranding in the Log; I am owner, as well as master, and I shall not enter it unless my officers insist."

"Do you mean you won't?" Jake stammered.

Drake cut in:

"Let me finish, please. There is another matter. A word will dismiss it. Mary is your woman. Stevens. She always was. I did you a wrong there. But if you had heard what she told me a while ago you would feel that I had been properly punished."

"Oh!" said Mary. The darkness was kind to her.

"Now I shall restate you as stated, Mister Stevens." Jake's figure stiffened. Here, at last was the meat. All the rest had been vapor: words. "Because it is not permissible for a sailing ship mate to have his wife aboard."

"Oh!" said Mary.

"So you will remain a passenger," said Drake, and the kindly darkness cloaked his broad grin. "A little longer. You see, if I were to put you back in command of the ship, you couldn't perform your own marriage ceremony, could you? So, if you will both come into the saloon with me, I'll call Mister Twining as a witness, and make of two splendid human beings the perfect pair."

"Just a minute, Captain Drake," said Jake Stevens, just a bit more chokily. "Are you having some more fun with me, or—"

"I'm having fun, certainly. I hope you will see the fun of it, too, Stevens. Come along."

They entered the saloon. Mary's big blue eyes opened like sea pansies. Like blue dressed "Bert in a white jacket. They both stood at attention beside a table laid out as if for a feast to royalty. Twining stood outside his cabin door, grinning as if he of words. With the least possible delay Captain Alden Talbot Drake pronounced Jake and Mary man and wife. He kissed the bride warmly, and laughed at her blushes. He sat her at the right hand of the table head chair, then stood aside with sunny, youthful, whimsical smile that naturally belonged to him. Jake Stevens stood by smiling, but as if not sure that he was invited. Drake laid a hand on the back of the head chair.

"Captain Stevens, won't you be seated?" he said.

"Oh, do you mean—is Jake to—What do you mean?" stammered Mary. Her face alight with something which convinced Alden Drake forever of the unfathomable happiness to be got out of a decent deed well done.

"If Captain Stevens will take his seat, and let us begin on the wedding supper, perhaps you will not embarrass me with so many questions. Sit down, Twining. I want you to relieve Adams before all the color has gone out of Mrs. Stevens' face."

And Twining relieved young Adams, who was not in the secret. "Mister Adams, Captain and Mrs. Stevens desire your company for the balance of the supper," said Drake with a twinkle. Many meals had been eaten in that saloon. Drake had seen young Mr. Adams eat a few, come crashing aboard.

But Mary had left him. She cared nothing for Captain's orders. Captain Jake Stevens was overwhelmed by a blushing, moist-eyed bride who simply must blab out her secret though all the shipping in the Straits were crashing aboard.

"And," Drake laughed, "there will be a one-quarter share for little Jake, and little Mary, and maybe for little Alden."

"Oh!" gasped Mary. "Oh, Alden!" She pulled his head down further, and kissed him on the lips, right in full view of puzzled and startled hubby.

"And," Drake laughed, "there will be a one-quarter share for little Jake, and little Mary, and maybe for little Alden."

WALES SEES FOR KING

London, Mar. 10.—The Prince of George, today is presiding for the first time at a "levee," one of the medieval pageants staged by British royalty in accordance with long standing custom.

Ambassadors in full dress costume will join richly uniformed military men of high rank in making obsequious to the Prince in St. James Palace.

Levees are exclusively masculine affairs and unless one is summoned to a levee or comes upon one cannot procure a ticket for the royal enclosure at Ascot or unless one watches the racing at that course one has not "arrived" in London society.

Levees are slow and formal functions, centering around the presentations of the members of the diplomatic corps and those of the army, navy or air force who have attained field rank or held certain appointments.

A total of 107 vessels were broken up or dismantled in the shipyards of the world the last three months of the year.

Fellowship of Prayer

Daily Lenten Bible reading and meditation prepared for Commission on Evangelism of Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

WEDNESDAY
Good Among Men

Read Lk. 7:11-17. Text 7:16. God hath visited his people.

MEDITATION—God has given us much both within our own inner lives and in the world about us to remind us of himself. There are deep in all men "intimations of immortality" and a reaching out for kinship with the Great Spirit that rules the Universe. We know he is by the testimony of our own souls. In the world about us how often are we reminded of him. Earth with its thousand voices praises God; the height of mountains calls the soul to reach upward; the broad sweep of the sea invites the soul to widen its horizon and to these voices of nature our spirit responds. Jesus came revealing the God of our own souls and of the universe as a Father, infinite in love and mercy. God was in Christ renewing and comforting the souls of men. In Christ, God visited his people in a new way that we might have saving knowledge of our Father in heaven.

PRAYER—Eternal God, we are ever thankful that thou didst reveal thyself in Jesus Christ. We would always think of thee and love thee as the Father Eternal. Let us walk with sure and kindly fellowship with thee and all thy children. Amen.

AMUSEMENTS

PRICES FOR "SHOW-OFF" CUT
Managers of Cohan's Grand and George Kelly's fine American comedy, "The Show-Off", which is in its tenth week and has delighted Chicago audiences, announce a reduction in prices. The Lenten season being here, the base ball and golf season close upon us. Income Tax payments to be made; other spring and summer sports pending involves a number of considerations for practical people whose amusement expense account is limited. It is widely known that the company playing "The Show-Off" in Chicago is even better than the one now in its second year in New York and the fact that such a play and performance may be seen for prices from fifty cents to two dollars, with Wednesday matinee fifty cents to one dollar is attractive.

Chicago and New York critics devoted columns of praise to the entire cast of a play America can be proud of. Ashton Stevens, Dramatic Critic of the Chicago Herald and Examiner, says:

"A real play is a real hit at Cohan's Grand—a very real play named 'The Show-Off'. I love it. It catches me in the funny bone and in the heart. You'll be surprised how many times you laugh during a play so honest and a performance a square. The whole cast is a roll of honor."

DAWES BORROWED MONEY FOR HIS WEDDING TRIP

Vice President Was Struggling Nebraska Lawyer When He Married Cora Blymer

By NEA Service

Washington—Forty years ago Vice President Dawes, then a lad of 19, was attending a law school in Cincinnati. The young man was paying his tuition and expenses with money he had saved while working as an engineer for a railroad during his summer vacations.

He spent nearly all of his time in study and had little time or money for social affairs.

His First Love
But one day he chanced to meet pretty Cora Blymer, daughter of one of Cincinnati's prominent citizens. It was his first love, and in her young Dawes found the girl of his dreams.

He courted her until his graduation, and then came a parting. For Dawes was not yet old enough to be admitted to the bar in Ohio.

And so the lad struck out for the west—the "Valley of Democracy" that held unlimited opportunities for young men of ambition and the will to succeed.

But he did not stay away long. When he left Cincinnati he left with a promise from the lips of his sweet heart.

And so, shortly after he had rented desk space in a law office in Lincoln, Neb., he went back to Cincinnati to claim the girl as his bride.

Many miles separated the young lawyer and his future wife. The law business in Lincoln had been poor, and Dawes had no money to pay the expenses of the trip.

He borrowed enough money to pay the train fare from the few friends he had been able to make during the short time he was at Lincoln.

And so the couple were married. Dawes took his bride back to Lincoln, and resumed his law practice. That was in 1889.

And now Mrs. Dawes has taken another trip with her "Charley." This time it was to Washington—not as the blushing bride of a struggling young lawyer, but as the charming wife of the vice president of the United States.

MRS. DAWES

She has left the big, beautiful house that overlooks Lake Michigan, in Evanston, Ill., where General and Mrs. Dawes have lived since 1894, and has taken up her residence at the nation's capital to rule as the second lady of the land.

Through all the years during which Dawes climbed to the heights of success and fame, his wife has aided and inspired him.

She was his helpmate in the days when he was practicing law, when he was made comptroller of the currency, when he was organizing and directing banks, when he was appointed general purchasing agent for the A. E. F.

When he was chosen director of the United States Budget Bureau, and finally when he was made head of the reparations commission.

"Hello! Maria"
Dawes usually has followed the advice of his wife except on one notable occasion. This was when he appeared before one of the numerous committees of Congress investigating the conduct of the war, after the war had been won.

The investigations had developed little of importance, and Dawes, sensing that the country was tired of the congressional bicycling, let loose a flood of "housewords" at the committee that left the congressmen gaping in amazement.

Every other sentence was punctuated with the famous phrase "Hello! Maria."

Whether Dawes deliberately used the housewords to ridicule and the investigations he never would reveal, but it is known that one of the most surprised persons during his appearance before the committee was his wife.

She hastened to explain to some of her friends that "Charley never talks that way at home."

Dawes is just a plain, home-loving man—an ideal husband and neighbor.

Two children were born to General and Mrs. Dawes. A son, Rufus Fearling, was drowned at Lake Geneva, Wis., while on a vacation in 1912. A daughter, now Mrs. Carolyn Ericson, resides in Evanston. The couple also adopted two children.

DODGE BROTHERS TYPE-B SEDAN

Popular with women because the seats and springs are restful, and because the lines of the car have genuine distinction.

Popular with men because the body is all-steel, the finish Dodge Brothers enduring black enamel, the upholstery genuine leather—factors which make for long life at lower first and after cost.

"Shoulders that droop and feet that drag"

THERE are men and women who seem to be eternally tired. They go about things in a listless sort of way. They try, but they can't seem to make the grade. Perhaps they do not realize that it is constipation which is sapping their energy.

There is a sure relief from this disease. It is Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN goes completely through the system without changing its fiber. It sweeps the intestine clean, purifies it, absorbs and carries moisture through it, urges it to act exactly as nature intended. Unlike habit-forming pills and drugs, it is never necessary to increase the amount of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN which you first find effective.

Let Kellogg's ALL-BRAN regain your health and keep you feeling fit. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. If eaten regularly, it is guaranteed to bring permanent relief or your grocer returns the purchase price. Eat your two tablespoonfuls with milk or cream, sprinkle it over other cereals, cook it with hot cereals, put it in soups and try it in the recipes given on every package.

Be sure you get Kellogg's ALL-BRAN—for only ALL-BRAN brings sure results. All grocers sell it. Leading hotels and restaurants serve it.
